

The orange tree

Its smell reminds me of when I was a child and I was walking through a park with my family. We could see a long row of orange trees, with those treetops full of orange blossom that fell slowly. It is not the same place, it is not like before, but the smell, the greenery and its orange fruit, are the same.

Betty 4A